Robert is an AV-rated (the highest possible peer rating for competence and character) litigation attorney who has represented commercial clients in a wide range of industries including aviation, shipping, private security, maritime carriage of cargo and passengers, firearms, design, garment, construction, lending, manufacturing, and gaming. He has successfully handled all manner of business disputes - including fraud, torts, contract claims, class actions, and product liability - at every stage, from pre-suit negotiations, through discovery, trials in state and federal trial courts, and to appeal.

Robert especially enjoys cases that turn on complex technical matters. He has worked with experts from such varied disciplines as aviation, the maritime trades, industrial manufacturing, the physical sciences, medicine and forensic accounting. He has deep experience working on both sides of very large fraud cases.

Robert practiced with the national firm of Holland & Knight LLP for six years before joining DGRW. He is admitted to practice in all courts of Florida, the United States District Courts for the Southern and Middle Districts of Florida and the Eleventh U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Before going to law school, Robert was a newspaper reporter and editor for more than 12 years. His undergraduate degree, a Bachelor of Science in biology, is from the University of Cincinnati. Robert graduated summa cum laude from the University of Miami School of Law, where he finished 6th in a class of 340, and was the Paul B. Anton Scholar, a three-semester Dean's Fellow, and was a member of the University of Miami Law Review and the Order of Coif.

Robert is an Adjunct Professor of Law at the University of Miami School of Law where he teaches attorney ethics and professional responsibility.

Robert maintains an extensive pro bono legal practice. His work has included children's advocacy, immigration and family law matters. He now concentrates his pro bono practice on representing domestic violence petitioners seeking judicial protection from their abusers.

Robert is on the Board of Directors of the Children's Voice Chorus. In its ninth season, the Children's Voice shapes the future by positively impacting the lives of young singers of all cultural and socioeconomic backgrounds through the highest quality choral music education. Robert is also a member of the Minister and Church Relations Committee of the South Florida Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in America. He also serves in, develops policy and training for, and has spoken publicly about church security. He was General Counsel of Opsail Miami 2000, where he conducted all legal affairs for the largest-ever convocation of international tall ships, a festival attended by more than 500,000 people. For his work on the event, he was awarded a Public Service Commendation by the United States Coast Guard.

Robert is conversant in Spanish, blogs at suburbansheepdog.blogspot.com and is a competitive shooter.
